Knowing that l'aul's desire was to hasten to Jerusalem for l'entecost (chapter xx. 16), we see film in the school of patlence as he journeys. It is a great victory when we learn to practice I Sam, x, 7-"Do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee" -and not to fret because the occasion does not happen to be to our liking.

5, 6. We kneeled down on the shore and prayed, and when we had laken our teave one of another we rook slids, and they returned home again.

The men, women and children with Paul's party, all kneeling on the shore praying, must have been a testimony to all who witnessed them not soon forgotten. The faithfulness and fearc lessness of those who under no circumstances omit their devotions are always to the glory of God and owned of Him. Even the lenthen condemn us by their fidtlefulness to their imaginary gods. The faithfulness of a Ilindoo on the deck of a pliothout as we salled up the river to Calcutta and of a t'hinaman on the wharf at Singapore made a great impression on me, not easily forgotten.

7, 8 We came to Piotemais and saluted The breilies and abode with them one day, and the next day we * * * came unto the sures, and we entered into the bouse of Philip the evaluedist, who was one of the nevel, and abode with him.

it is very refreshing to meet the redeemed of the Lord here and there as one journeys from place to place. There is no bond that can be compared to it. Those who think that the bond of Freenuscory and tidd Fellowship and such orders is the fest bond for travelers either are not Christians or if they are they do not know illor as they might. i as a professing Christian tried the tirst memes order faithfully, and, while I have nothing to say against it for those who inve nothing better, i am glad I inve found something better and have proved it for more than thirty yours and around the globe and la matey lands. It is that hard of oneness with Christ which secbound together Paul and lds jurty and the believers at Tyre and Ptolepmis and Casarea and makes true believers one everywhere today.

a And the same man had four daughtern, virgina, which did propheny.

The last we heard of Phillip was that after he hantized the treasurer of Queen l'andace he was found at Azotus and that be preached in all the cities Vil he came to Chesuren. We are now glad to find him still witnessing and keeping open house for Christians and that his daughters are so one with him. It must have been a happy home, a very delightful place, to sojourn, and we do not wonder that l'aul was able to overcome his lurste to be at Jerusalem in order to tarry there many days. As to women prophesylog, being the Lord's messengers, see Joel II, 28; Ps. lxviii, 1t. It. V.: Phil. iv, h, and think of Debornli, Huldule and others and see further indersement in 1 Cor. xi, 5.

10, 1t. Thus saith the Itoly Chost, So shall the Jews at Jerusatem blick tice man tiest ownersh this girdle and shall deliver him into the hands of the gentiles.

Tims testified Agnitus, a prophet from Judga, and this added to the voice of the Spirit at Tyre (verse 4) makes me, Inclined to believe that Paul was not journeying to Jerusalem by command of the Spirit and that the years of imprisonment and some other things inight have been avoided had he been more obedient to the Spirit. There is only one perfect man, fully controlled by the Spirit, set before us in Scripture the man Christ Jesus. He never fulled. All others linve. We do not pretend to say that Paul was in the wrong in Acts xv, 39, int we do know that the time came when he was glad to lave Mark (il Tim. lv, 11). We do not know why Paul wanted to go into Asin and Bithynia when the Spirit did not want him to (Acts xvl, 6, 7), and the twice repeated message from the Spirit in our lesson markes us somewhat perplexed as to why Paul insisted on going to Jernsulem.

t2. And when we heard these things both we and they of that place beaought him not to go up to Jerusalem.

So lu spite of the warnings of the Spirit and the entreatles of Luke and others of his own party and of Philip and his daughters and the other disciples l'aul determines to go on, expressing his readiness to be bound and to die at Jernsalem for the name of the Lord Jesus. The others could Therefore only pray the Lord to necomplish His will and commit all to Him. So in due time they arrived at Jerusaiem, and the brethren received them gladly (verses 12-i7). I know of nothing more necessary for a child of God than to be filled with and controlled by the floly Spirit, but that certainly menns obedience to the Spirit in all things. It means a great deal to himu-ble ourselves to walk with God (Mic.

vi, 8) and have no will of our own.

A STUDY IN SCARLET.

By A. CONAN DOYLE.

PART ONE.

Being a reprint from the reminiscences of John H. Watson, M. D., late of the army medical department.)

"They would be likely to agree on some meeting place beforehand," remarked Holmes.

'So it proved. I spent the whole of yesterday evening in making impuiries entirely without avail. This morning I began very early, and at 8 o'elock 1 reached Halliday's Private hotel in Litthe theorge street. On my inquiry as to whether a Mr. Stangerson was living there they at once answered me in the affirmative.

" No doubt you are the gentleman be was expecting, they said. 'He has been waiting for a gentleman for two days.

" 'Where is he now?' I asked.

""He is up stairs in bed. He wished to lie called at 9.

"It seemed to me that my sudden appearance might shake lds nerves and lead him to say something unguarded. The boots volunteered to show me the room. It was on the second floor, and there was a small corridor leading up to it. The boots pointed out the deer to me and was about to go down stairs again when I saw something that made me feel sickish, in spite of my 20 years' experience. From under the door there surled a little red ribbon of blood, which had meandered across the passage and formed a little peol along the skirting at the other side. I gave a cry, which brought the boots back. He nearly fainted when he saw it. The door was jocked on the Inside, but we put our shoulders to it and knocked it in. The window of the room was open, and beside the wimlew, all huddled up, lay the body of a man in his nightdress. He was quite dead and had been for some time, for his limbs were rigid and Whon we turned him over, the hoots recognized him at once as being the same gentleman who had engaged room under the name of Stangerson. The cause of death was a deep ship in the left side, which must have penetrated the heart. And now comes the strangest part of the affair. What do you suppose was above the murdered man?"

I felt a creeping of the flesh and a presentiment of coming horror, even before

of blood," he said. "That was it," said Lestrade in an awestruck veice, and we were all silent for awidle. There was semething so methodical and so incorreprehensible about the deeds of this unknown assassln that it incparted a fresh ghastliness to his crimes. My nerves, which were steady enough on the field of leattle, tingled as I thought

"The man was seen," continued Lestrade, "A milkboy, passing on his way to the dairy, happened to walk down the lane which leads from the mews at the luck of the notei. He noticed that a ladder, which usually iny there, was raised against one of the windows of the second floor, which was wide open. After passing he looked back and saw a man descend the ladder. He came down so quietly and openly that the boy imagined him to be some curpenter or joiner at work in the hetei. He took no particular notice of him beyond thinking in his own mind that it was parly for him to be at work. He has an impression that the man was tall, had a reddish face and was dressed in a long brownish cont. He must have staid in the room some little time after the murder, for we found blood stained water in the basin, where he had washed his hands, and marks on the sheets where he lad deliberately wiped his knife,"

I glanced at Holmes on hearing tho description of the murderer, which taifled so exactly with his own. There was, however, no trace of exultation or satisfaction ugon his face.

"Did you find nothing in the room which could furnish a clew to the murderer?" he asked.

"Nothing Stangerson had Drebber's purse in his pocket, but it seems that this was usual, as he did all the paying. There was eighty odd poands in It, but nothing had been taken. Whatever the motives of these extraordinary crimes, robbery is certainly not one of them. There were no papers or memoranda in the murdered man's pocket, except a single telegram, dated from Cleveland about a month ago and containing the words, 'J. II. is in Europe,' There was no name appended to this message."

"And there was nothing else?" Holmes asked.

"Nothing of any importance. The man's novel, with which he had read himself to sieep, was iying upon the bed, and his pipe was on a chair heside hiar. There was a glass of water on the table, and on the window sill a small chip cintment box containing a couple of Sherlock lioimes sprang from his cluir with an exclamation of delight. "The last link," he eried exultantly.

'My case is complete." The two detectives stared at him in anmzement.

"I have now in ray hands," my com panion said confidently, "all the threads which have formed such a tangle. There are, of course, details to be filled in, but I am as certain of all the main facts, from the time that Dreiber parted from Stangerson at the station up to the discovery of the body of the latter, as if I had seen them with my own eyes. I will give you a proof of my knowledge. Could you lay your hand upon those pills?

"I have them," said Lestrade, producing a small white box. "I took them, and the purse, and the telegram, intending to have them put in a place of safety at the police station. It was the merest chance, my taking these pills, for I am bound to say that I do not attach any importance to them.'

"Give them here," said Holmes,
"Now, doctor," turning to me, "are these ordinary pills?"

They certainly were not. They were of a pearly gray color, small, round and almost transparent against the light. 'From their lightness and transparency I should imagine that they are soluble in water, " I remarked.

"Precisely so," answered Hoimes. "Now, would you mind going down and fetching that poor little sevil of a terrier which has been bad so long, and which the landlady wanted you to put out of its pain yesterday?"

I went down stairs and carried the dog up stairs in my arms. Its labored breathing and glazing eye showed that it was not far from its end. Indeed its snow white muzzle proclaimed that it had already exceeded the usual term of canine existence. I piaced it upon a enshion on the rug.

"I will now cut one of these pills in two," said Holmes, and drawing his penknife he suited the action to the word. "One half we return into the box for the future purposes. The other half I will piace in this wineglass, in which is a tenspoonful of water. You perceive that our friend, the doctor, is right, and that it readily dissolves."

"This may be very interesting," said Lestrade in the injured tone of one who suspects that he is being laughed at. "I cannot see, however, what it has to do with the death of Mr. Joseph Stangerson. 4

"Patience, my friend, patiencel You will find in time that it has everything to do with it. I shall now add a little milk to make the mixture palatable, and on presenting it to the dog we find that he laps it up rendily enough.

As he spoke he turned the contents of the wineglass into a saucer and placed it in front of the terrier, who speedily licked it dry. Sherlock Holmes' earnest itemeanor had so far convinced us that we all sat in silence, watching the animal intently and expecting some startling effect. None such appeared, however. The dog continued to lie stretched upon the cushion, breathing in a labored way, leut apparently neither the better nor the worse for its draft.

Holpies had taken out his watch as minute followed minate without result an expression of the utmost chagrin and disappointment appeared upon his features. He gnawed his lip, drummed his fingers upon the table and showed every other symptom of acute Impatience. So great was his emotion that I felt sincerely sorry for him, while the two detectives smiled derisively, by ne means disideased at this check which he had met

"It can't lse a coincidence, "he cried, at last springing from his chair and pacing wildly up and down the room. 'It is impossible that It should be a mere coincidence. The very pills which I suspected in the case of Drebber are actually found after the death of Stangerson. And yet they are inert. What can it mean? Surely my whole chain of reasoning cannot have been faise. It is Impossible! And yet this wretched dog is none the worse. Alt, I have it! I have With a perfect shriek of delight he rushed to the box, cut the other pili in two, dissolved it, added milk and presented it to the terrier. The unfortunate creature's tongue seemed hardly to have been moistened in it before it gave a convulsive shiver in every limb and lay as rigid and lifeless as if it had been struck by lightning.

Sherlock Holmes drew a long breath and wiped the perspiration from his forehead. ''I should have more faith,'' he said. ''I ought to know hy this time that when a fact appears to be opposed to a long train of deductions it invariably proves to be capable of bearing some other interpretation. Of the two pills in that box one was the most deadiy poison, and the other was entirely inarniless. I ought to have known that before ever I saw the box at all."

This iast statement appeared to me to be so startling that I could hardly believe that he was in his sober senses. There was the dead dog, however, to prove that his conjecture had been correct. It seemed to me that the mists in my own mind were gradually clearing away, and I began to have a dim, vague perception of the trutin.

"Ail this seems strange to you," continued Holmes, "because you failed at the beginning of the inquiry to grasp the luiportance of the single real clew which was presented to you. I had the good fortune to seize upon that, and everything which has occurred since then has served to confirm my original supposition and indeed was the logical sequenes of it. Hence things which have perplexed you and made the case mere obscure have served to enlighten me and to strengthen my conclusions. It is a mistake to confound strangeness with mystery. The most commonplace crlaic nurder would have been infinitely more difficult to unravel had the body of the victim been simply found lying in the roadway without may of those ontre and sensational accompaniments which have rendered it renmrkable. These strange details, far from making the case more difficult, have really had the effect of making it less so." Mr. Gregson, who had listened to this address with considerable impatience, could contain himself no longer. "Look here, Mr. Sherlock lindmes," he said, "we are all ready to acknowledge that you are a smart man, and that you have your own methods of working. Wo want something more than mere theory and preaching now, though. It is a case of taking the man. I have made my case out, and it seems I was wrong, Young Charpentier could not have been engaged in this second affair. Lestrade went after his man, Stangerson, and it appears that he was wrong too. You have threwn out hints here and hints there and seem to know more than we do, but the time has come when we feel that we have a right to ask you straight how much you do know of the business. Can you name the man who did it?"

"I cannot help feeling that Gregson is right, sir," remarked Lestrade. "We have both tried, and we have both failed. You have remarked more than once since I have been in the room that you had ail the evidence which you require, Surely you will not withhold it any lon-

"Any delay in arresting the assassia," I observed, "might give him time to perpetrate some fresh atrocity."

Thus pressed by us att, Honnes showed signs of irresolution. He continued to walk up and down the room with his head sunk on his chest and his brows drawn down, as was his habit when lost lu thought.

'There will be no more mnrders," he said at iast, stopping abruptly and facing "You can put that consideration out us. of the question. You have asked me if I know the name of the assassin. I do. The mero knowing of his name is a small thing, however, compared with the power of laying our hands upon This I expect very shortly to do, I have good hopes of managing it through my own arrangements, but it is a thing which needs delicate handling, for we have a shrewd and desperate man to deal with, who is supported, as I have had occasion to prove, by another, who is as clever as himself. As long as this man has no idea that any one can have a clew there is some chance of securing him, but if he had the slightest suspicion he would change his name and vanish in an instant among the 4,000,000 inhabitants of this great city. Without meaning to hurt either of your feelings I am bound to say that I consider these men to be more than a match for the official force, and that is why I have not asked your assistance. If I fall, I shail of course incur all the blane due to this omission, but that I am prepared for. At present I am ready to promise that the instant that I can communicate with you without endangering my own combinations I shall do so,' Gregson and Lestrade seemed to be far from satisfied by this assurance or by the depreciating aliusion to the detective police. The former had flushed up to the roots of his flaxen hair, while the other's lendy eyes glistened with curiosity and resentment. Neither of them had time to speak, however, before there was a tap at the door and the spekesman of the street arnbs, young Wiggins, introduced his insignificant and unsavory

"Please, sir," he said, touching his forelock, "I have the cab down stairs." "Good boy," said lioimes blandiy. 'Why don't you introduce this pattern at Scotland Yard?" he continued, taking a pair of steel handeuffs from a drawer. See how beautifully the springs works. They fasten in an instant.

"The old pattern is good enough," remarked Lestrade, "if we can find the man to put them on."

"Very good, very good," said Helmes, smiling. "The cabman may as well help me with my boxes. Just ask him to step up, Wiggins."

I was surprised to find my companion speaking as though he were about to set out on a journey, since he had not said anything to me about it. There was a small pormanteau in the room, and this be pulled out and began to strap. He was busily engaged at it when the cabman entered the room.

"Just give me a heip with this buckie. cabman," he said, kneeling over his task and never turning his head.

The feilow came forward with a somewhat sullen, defiant air and put down his hands to assist. At that instant there was a sharp click, the janging of metal, and Sheriock Holmes sprang to his feet again.

"Gentlemen," he cried, with flasining eyes, "let me introduce you to Mr. Jefferson Hope, the murderer of Enoch Drebber and of Joseph Stangerson."

The whole thing occurred in a moment, so quickly that I had no time to realize it. I have a vivid recollection of that instant, of Holmes' triumphant expression and the ring of his voice, of the calman's dazed, savage face as he glared at the giittering handcuffs, which had appeared as If by magio upon his wrists. For a second or two we might have been a group of statues. Then, with an inarticulate rear of fury, the prisoner wrenched himself free from Hoimes' grasp and huried himseif through the window. Woodwork and giass gave way before him, but before he got quite through Gregson, Lestrade and Holmes sprang upon him like so many staghounds. Ho was dragged back into the room, and then commenced a terrific conflict. So powerful and so fierco was he that the four of us were shaken off ngain and again. He appeared to have the convuisive strength of a man iu an epileptic fit.

Ilis face and hands were terribly mangled by the passage through the glass, but loss of blood had no effect in diminishing his resistance. It was not until is often the most mysterious because it Lestrade succeeded in getting his hand presents no new or special features from inside his neck cloth and half stranins struggles were of no avail, and even then we felt no security until we had pinioned his feet as well as his hands. That done, we rose to our feet breathless and panting.

"We have his cab," said Sherlock Holmes. "It will serve to take him to Scotland Yard. And now, gentlemen, he centinued, with a pleasant smile, "we have reached the end of our little mystery. You are very welcome to put any questions that you like to me now, and there is no danger that I will refuse to answer them."

PART TWO.

[The Country of the Saints.]

In the central portion of the great North American continent there iies an arid and repulsive desert, which for many a long year served as a barrier against the advance of civilization. From the Sierra Nevada to Nebraska and from the Yellowstone river in the north to the Colorado upon the south is a region of desolution and silence, Nor is nature always in one mood throughout this grim district. It comprises snow capped and lofty mountains and dark and gloomy valleys. There are swift flowing rivers which dash through jagged canyons, and there are enormous plains which in winter are white with snow and in summer are gray with the saline alkali dust. They all preserve, however, the common characteristics of barrenness, inhospitality and misery.

There are no inhabitants of this jand of despair. A band of Pawnees or of Blackfeet may occasionally traverse it in order to reach other hunting grounds, but the hardiest of the braves are glad to lose sight of those awesome plains and to find themselves once more upon their prairies. The covote skulks among the scrub, the buzzard flaps heavily through the air, and the clumsy grizzly bear lumbers through the dark ravines and picks up such sastenance as it can among the rocks. These are the sole dwellers in the wilderness. In the whole world there can be no more dreary view than that from the northern slope of the Sierra Blanco. As far as the eye can reach stretches the great flat plain land, all dusted over with patches of alkali and intersected by clumps of the dwarfish chaparral bushes. On the extreme verge of the horizon lie a long chain of mountain peaks, with their rugged summits flecked with snow. In this great stretch of country there is no sign of life nor of anything appertaining to life. There is no lard in tho steel blue heaven, no movement upon the duli, gray earth. Above all, there is absolute silence. Listen as one may, there is no shadow of a sound in all that mighty wilderness. Nothing but silence -complete and heart subduing silence.

It has been said there is nothing appertaining to life upon the broad plain. That is hardly true. Looking down from the Sierra Blauco one sees a pathway traced out across the desert, which winds away and is lost in the extreme distance. It is rutted with wheels and trodden down by the feet of many adventurers. Here and there are scattered white objects which glisten in the sun and stand out against the dull deposit of alkali. Approach and examino them! They are bones. Some large and coarse, others smaller and more delicate. The former have belonged to oxen and the latter to men. For 1,500 miles one may trace this ghastly caravan route by the scattered remains of those who had failen by the wayside.

Looking down on this very scene, there stood upon the 4th of May, 1847, a solitary traveler. His appearance was such that he might have lyen the very genius or demon of the region. An observer would have found it difficult to say whether ho was nearer to 40 or 60. liis face was ican and haggard, and tho brown, parchmentlike skin was drawn tightly over the projecting bones; his ioug, brown hair and beard were all fleeked and dashed with white; his eyes were sunken in his head and burned with an unnatural juster, while the hand which grasped his rifle was hardly more fleshy than that of a skeleton. As he stood, he leaned upon his weapon for support, and yet his tall figure and the massive framework of his bones suggested a wiry and vigorous constitution. Ilis. gannt face, however, and his clothes, which hung so baggily over his shriveied limbs, proclaimed what It was that gave him that senile and decrepit appearance. The man was dylug-dying rosu hunger and from thirst.

He had tolled painfully down the ravine and on to this little elevation in the vain hope of seeing some signs of water. Now the great salt plain stretched before his eyes, and the distant belt of savage mountains, without a sign anywhere of plant or tree, which might ludieate the presence of moisture. In all that broad landscape there was no gleam of hope. North and east and west ho looked with wild, questioning eyes, and then he realized that his wanderings had come to an end, and that there, on that barren erag, he was about to die. Why not here as well as in a feather bed 20 years hence?" he muttered as he seated himself in the shelter of a bowlder.

Before sitting down he had deposited upon the ground his useless rifle, and dso a large bundle tied up in a gray shawl, which he had carried slung over his right shoulder. It appeared to be somewhat too heavy for his strength, for, in lowering it, it came down on the ground with some little violence. Instantly there broke from the gray parcel a little moaning cry, and from it there protruded a small, seared face, with very bright brown eyes, and two speckled dimpled fists. 'You've hurt mol' said a childish voice reproachfully. "Have I, though?" the man answered penitently. "I didn't go for to do As he spoke he unwrapped the gray shawi and extricated a pretty little girl of about 5 years of age, whose dainty shoes and smart pink frock, with its litwhich deductions may be drawn. This gling him that we made him regize that the inen apron, all bespoke a mother's care. The child was pale and wan, but her healthy arms and legs showed that she had suffered less than her compan-

"liow is it now?" he answered anxiously, for sho was still rubbing the towsy golden curls which covered the back of her head.

'Kiss it and make it well," she said, with perfect gravity, shoving the injured part up to him. 'That's what mother used to do. Where's mother?'

'Mother's gone. I guess you'll see iter before long."

"Gone, elt?" said the little girl. "Fuany she didn't say goodby. She most always did if she was just goin over to auatie's for tea, and now she's been away for three days. Say, it's awful dry, ain't it? Ain't there no water nor nothin to eat?"

"No, there ain't nothing, dearle. You'll just need to be patient awhile, and then you'll be all right. Put your hand up agin me like that, and then you'll feel better. It ain't easy to talk when your lips is like leather, but I gaess I'd best let you know how the cards lie. What's that you've got?"

"Pretty things! Fine things!" cried the little girl enthnsiastically, holding up two glittering fragments of mica. "When we goes back to home, I'll give them to Brother Bob."

"You'll see prettier things than them soon," said the man confidently. "You just wait a bit. I was goin to tell you, though-you remember when we left the river?

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causlng the cough, and at the same time clears the phiegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is a harm-less and never failing cure in all curable cases of Coughs, Colds and Croup.

Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible sitack of croup. I quickly secured a boille of One Minute Cough Cure and gave her three doses halt an hour spart. The croup was mastered and our little durling speedily recovered. I cannot praise One Minute Cough Cure too much for whall il has done in our tamily.—A. L. Spaftord, Postmaster, Chester, Mich.

KENTUCKY AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Every Character of School In the State Will Faratsh Exhibits-Twenty-Five Handred Square Feet of Space For Kentucky In Palace of Education.

The Louisiana Purchase exposition nt St. Louis next year will have the first building ever creeted for an educational exhibit. In it will be seven aeres of floor space, and Kentucky has applied for 2,500 square feet of this amount. If the present plans are carried out, all of this space will be well filled with exhibits of school work of every kind, from the kindergarien to the technological schools and universities. Professor H. G. Brownell, principal of, the Manual Trolling High school of Louisville, is chairman of the educational exhibit committee of the association. He has associated with him on this committee the following well known educators: Professor H. V. McChesney, Frankfort; Professor R. P. Halleck, Louisville; Professor W. II. Bartholomew, Louisville; l'refessor F. Paul Andersoa, Lexington; Dr. Chase Palmer, Danviile; i'resident William Dinwiddle, Jackson; Dr. W. G. Frost, Berea; Dr. B. P.

In each of these groups there will be several classes showing school management, organization, statistics, pictures and plans of huildings, methods of instructions, results obtained and pupils' and students' work. The training of teachers will also receive attention.

i'rofessoor Brownell has anaouaced that the committee especially desires good exhibits from the graded schools

EDUCATIONAL BUILDING. and rurai schools of the state, and an exhibit illustrating the work of the mountain schools. He hopes to enist the interest of all teachers and superintendents throughout the state with regard to the proposed exhibits. The fact that the Keutucky Exhibit association has decided to give the most popular school teacher in every county In the state a free trip to the World's fair will doubtless add greatly to the Interest in the display to be made by the educational committee. This committee will have charge of the coatest, so far as the counting of the votes is concerned. School teachers and city and county superintendents In every section of the commonwealth have indorsed the popularity contest.

KENTUCKY TOBACCO IS KING. The St. Louis world's fair ollicials have paid Keatucky tobacco the highest compliment possible ia the Agricultural building at the exposition. Ten thousand square feet will be devoted to a collective exhibit of tobacco from all over the United States. Oachalf of this space has been asigned to Kentucky, Mr. Charles D. Campheli of Louisville is chairman of the tobacco exhibit committee of the Kentucky Exhibit association, and, with the assistance of his committee, Is taking full advantage of the recognition made the Blue Grass State in its importance as a tobacco-growing commonweaith.

KENTUCKY COTTON AT FAIR. It is not generally known that cotton is grown in Kentucky, but this is a fact that will be prominently brought to the attention of the visitors of the World's fair. Fulton county grows as line cotton as is to be found anywhere in the south. It, however, is the only county in the state where this culture has proved a success. Many of the farmers there have turned from corn and wheat to cotton and have found it a profitable change.

ACTORS MAY PLAY TWICE A DAY IN THE FUTURE By SIT HENRY IRVING

HE OLD ACTORS HAD TO PLAY FOUR TIMES A WEEK AT MOST-THAT IS, THOSE WHO HAD TO PLAY HEAVY PARTS. THE ACTOR OF TODAY HAS TO PLAY NEVER LESS THAN SIX TIMES, GENERALLY SEVEN, SOMETIMES EVEN

EIGHT. It is within the present generation of players that the matinee has arisen.

TWO MATINEES A WEEK DELIGHT THE HEART OF THE MANAGER. PERHAPS HE DREAMS SOMETIMES OF A PLAY WITH SUCH MAGNETIC ATTRACTIONS THAT THE PUBLIC WILL WANT TO SEE IT TWICE A DAY FOR AT LEAST SIX MONTHS.

That is not beyond the bounds of possibility when you consider the multitude of playgoers and the increasing facilities of communication. THEATERS ARE SPRINGING UP EVERY-WHERE. * * * THE TRAMCAR AND ELECTRIC SYS-TEMS, THE OVERHEAD AND UNDERGROUND RAILS, HAVE BROUGHT EVEN DISTANT SUBURBS INTO IM-MEDIATE TOUCH WITH THE HEART OF THE GREAT CITIES, and there are 500 towns where the same conditions apply in greater or less degree.

Our Universities and Their Work

By WOODROW WILSON, President of Princeton University

HE university is not for every man. For one thing, it is not every man who could or would care to wait until his twenty-fourth year to go into lusiness. The world must be served in various ways, and the university man alone is not able to serve

The universities turn out a good many failures, but men go to the universities from various motives. Some are turned out still in the raw state after four years' attendance, some are turned out who are acquainted with learning, but whose stock of it will not stand the wind and weather of life, and yet every man must get some little benefit from his university training.

THE HUMAN MIND HAS AN INFINITE CAPACITY FOR RE-SISTING KNOWLEDGE, BUT WE HAVE A SYSTEM OF DRAGOON-ING STUDENTS, AND THEY ARE BENEFITED SOMEHOW AND IN SOME WAYS IN SPITE OF ALL.

The only way to kindle fire is with fire, and once it is kindled you may safely leave it to larm. It is the teacher's duty to lay before the pupil the compass and chart and show him where men have explored and where the dark continents of thought lay. The teacher is also to breed the temper of judgment, sanity and tolerunce. In an intellectual sphere there are poise and ease, and that is where the university differs from the common school. The boy learns to use his mind like a tool of precision. THE GREAT THING ABOUT OUR UNIVERSITIES IS THEIR DEMOC RACY. THE ONLY DIFFERENCE IN THEM IS IN ACHIEVEMENT. It may be intellectual, athletic or social, but these are the only lines of demarcation among the students.

AND SO THE FUNCTION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF THE UNITED STATES IS THE SERVICE OF THE NATION, THE PREP-ARATION OF SPECIALIZED MINDS, NOT IN THE SENSE OF BEING NARROWED, BUT IN THE SENSE OF BEING TEMPERED FOR HARD AND DELICATE USE.

LIFE, LIBERTY AND A JOB MAN'S INALIENABLE RIGHTS

LL MEN ARE ENTITLED TO CERTAIN INALIENABLE RIGHTS, AND AMONG THE RIGHTS ARE LIFE, LIB-ERTY AND A JOB.

Perhaps that is the way the distinguished author of the Declaration intended it to read. The phrase "the pursuit of happiness" may have been only his synonym for a job. The human species is of such a complicated structure and the requirements of its existence and development are so multiform that labor is a necessity. LABOR, THEREFORE, MUST HAVE BEEN NOT ALONE THE NECESSITY OF OUR EXISTENCE, BUT THE INTENTION OF OUR CRE-ATION.

The right to have a chance to labor must be considered one of the primary rights of humanity. Theology and science both agree that a man must earn his daily bread, and if so he certainly has the right to do so.

The legal right to work is only the formulation of the natural right and should be so formulated whenever required.

In the long path of sorrow we may perchance meet ourseives. - Hev. Dr. Wliley, Methodist. Brooklyn.

The Permanent influence. The influence of books can only be transitory and not perumnent, because books are ideas, and ideas change. The influence of a ilfe is permanent, heenuse it is practical and can be appilled. You are convinced as to its spirituai power.-Itev. Dr. Hondthaler, Presbyterian, Indianapolls.

The Renovation of Society. If the church of Christ were a faithfui witness to his message, multitudes of the rich young men in this age would respond to her cail in a way that would imagurate a renovated society. reconstruct all imman values and reintions and hew out a model for all future ages in the very heart and citadel of modern antichrist.- Rev. P. Barr. Episcopallan, New Redford, Mass.

Heaven Suited to Man's Needs. We learn of heaven by studying the needs of nmn. Man will find all his needs met in heaven. Heaven will be no greater place than you prepare your soul to receive. You can ascend no higher toward God than you have nader God's spirit emilded yourself to do. No worse hell will come to man that he deilberately fits blmself for.-Hev Dr. Aionzo Monk, Methodist, Atianta Profitableness of Religion. It is easy to throw the blame of our own fullares upon the conditions under which we are flying and surely it is comforting, but the wise man thinks twice before he accepts such a plea-No one will deny that inlightly scores mmny seeming successes, but the fact remains that godliness is profitable for Wheat-No. 2 Red.... this world as well as the world to come. - Itev. Dr. Haymond, President Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.

Inward Peace. Peace is inward sutisfaction resulting from reconcillation with God-his character, his government, his revenied pian for humanity's regeneration. It is absolute harmony with one's environment on earth or in heaven, a linrmony based upon intelligent and bearty negalescence in the divine will as the supreme wisdom and the supreme good. It is pence with God, seif, duty and all mankind.-Rev. Dr. Landrum, Imptist, Atlanta, Ga.

Definition of Perfection What is perfection? In the Old Testament perfection often meuns aduithood or manhood. Another memning more exact, more definite, is that of finality, reaching the goal, that which is carried through to completion, which fullills nil the laws of its being, the purpose of its creation. He who is perfect in this larger sense has got rid of ail taint of or inclination to sin. Every one timt has attained this ideal shull be like Christ. No other religion in the world has this to say.-Hev. Dr. Mudge, Methodist, Worcester, Mass.

Greater Than Poet or Sage. It is useiess to tulk of Christ's "ideal pre-existence." His words enunot be tortured to convey this vague and pre-existence at all it was netual and ing prices:even elernal. His words therefore have a different import from the proverbs of the suges or the songs of the poets. The lutter are eloquent and thought inspiring, but the former are spiritual and life giving. In this we find the distinctive characteristic of the tenching of Jesus, for nowhere else do we feel the power or receive the promise of an endless life.-Rev. Dr. William M. Jones, Congregationalist, St. Louis

The True Remedy.

If all the employers of the world were ready to seek justice, to see wint ought to be done, not to grasp to get all wilhout regard to the interest and rights of others, but would seek justice-that is, seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness-and if the workers would seek God and his righteonsness, not to seek to do as little work as possible for the inrgest pay, not to seek to evade or get ahead of competitions; if they would only follow the spirit and teaching of Jesus, then nli the bliterness and injustice and wrong that lead to so much of anarchy and social disturbance would be done away in a month.-itev. Dr. Minot J. Savage, Unitarian, New

SOUVENIR BUTTON FREE.

The Kentucky Exhibit Association has determined to give a souvenir but ton, the regular price of which is one dollar, to every person who casts ten votes in the Scho l Teachers' Popularity, contest or forms a club of ten and thereby casts ten votes.

Remember then that every ten votes cast in the contest entitles the one casting them to a souvenir button free.

Remember, too, that the purchaser of a souvenir button may cast ten votes in the contest, without any additional expenditure.

Cash Subscriptions

The Kentucky Exhibit Association, with the hope of awakening the deepest interest possible in the School Teachers' Popularity Contest, from the very start, has decided to allow teachers desiring to enter the contest to become solicitors for subscriptions to the $100,000 fund being raised and to apply every cash contribution, whether for one dollar or one hundred dollars, in votes at ten cents each for himself or herself.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

Mrs. Sarah D. Lane, of Boston, Mass., a friend of Berea College, and a large purchaser from the Homeapun Department, has offered two special prizes for blackets.

Woven in a pattern, to be either real madder and bark green, or light walnut and light indigo. 1st prize, $3.00; 2nd prize, $2.00. Write to Mrs. Hettie Wright Graham, Berea, Kentucky, for exact colors and size.

For liver troubles and constipation There's nothing better in creation Than Little Early Risers, the famous little pills

They always effect a cure and save doctor bills.

Little Early Risers are different from all other pills. They do not weaken the system, but act as a tonic to the tissues by arousing the secretions and restoring the liver to the full performance of its functions naturally. For sale by East End Drng Co.

If style is desired our

will fill the bill to a dot. It is light, handsome and very durable. If strength is the main considera tion our $20 TEAM HARNESS will meet all requirements. Couldn't be stronger if it was all iron.
